

Amy Suzanne Willard

I consider myself a North Florida native, born in Minneapolis but raised in Jacksonville, and am a graduate of The Bolles School (1984), Stetson University (1989), and Jacksonville University (1993). My 20 years in teaching and research include population analysis work on Florida Manatees and North Atlantic Right Whales, but my passions in life encompass: teaching nearly every science discipline (Chemistry, Biology, and Physics) to high school students and medical courses to college students, as well as raising my two girls Elli and Sara Grace, who are 6 and 14. Our family enjoys outdoor pursuits, traveling, and sports when we can find the time. I have found in my travels that research is vital to preserving and respecting our beautiful gift of a world, but paramount for completing my spirit are: mentoring, guiding, and inspiring young adults. I am grateful to be joining the St. Joseph Academy family, and look forward to growing together in fellowship and excellence.
